

Verse 1

We were just friends, running through the city lights
Laughing on the pavement, chasing down the night
Big Ben struck twelve, something in your eyes
Turned the London sky into a brand new sunrise

Verse 2

Piccadilly glow, you reached and took my hand
Never thought we'd cross this line, but now I understand
From Camden to the Thames, the world just disappeared
Every word you whispered pulled me closer near

Chorus

'Cause London made us lovers, under rainy skies
Kissed you in the moment, never felt so alive
From friends to something more, the city lit the way
London made us lovers, and I don't want to change
